THE FLORAL MARRIAGE.

[Correspondence of the Daily Saratogian] GREEN HOUSE, MID-SUMMER. My Dear John Quitt-Glorious news!-Ring the Blue Bells! Sound the Trumpet Flowers! Sweet William and Polly Anthus were married yesterday afternoon at four o'clock. And, ob! such a host as came to the wedding! Oid Leander and Mother Commissioners of this Court, who shall state Wort berrowed Venus's Car, and set out te- and report to the Court the amount of indebtedgether but as they were passing through ness from the Alexandria and Washington Rail-Dog-Wood, they upset, and the Colt's foot be-ing lamed, they tried to borrow a Sorrel of & Co, and shall further report whether there are ing lamed, they tried to borrow a Sorrel of the Wood family. Not succeeding in this, they came a mile on foot, and looked very much wilted when they arrived. Dan De Lion made his appearance with sweet Ludy Mary, and soon after came Creeping Jenny clinging to a Ragged Sailor. Old Mistletoe, complaining as usual of his corns, was kindly assisted by Bouncing Betty, who makes berself at home, anywhere. And little Jessie Mine with Running Rose, those inseparable companions, came hand in hand, followed by R bin Runaway, who was too bashful to speak to them. Then there was a whole troop of Old Maid Pinks and Bachelor's Butens, who to say the least, looked very blooming, considering their age. And last of all with very modest looks, came Johnny Jumpup and his little blue-eyed sister Violet.

Old Monke, Hood performed the ceremony and afterwards we had a great supper. There were sweet peas and sugar leaves, honey dew in King's cups, set all around the table, and great dishes of pollen, where every one could eat to his heart's content. Dan De-Lion, who is very fond of pollen, ate so fast, that he got more on his face than he did in his mouth, and when he was judged to kiss Lady Mary as a forfeit, he got it all on her new ANDRIA COUNTY, VA., May 22, 1858. the Lady's Delight and said, "Jump up and of the Master Commissioner in this cause to the kiss me," which he did with the greatest same or any other of the Commissioners of this pleasure, although he is in no wise unfaith- Court for a further report, and doth direct, that ful to Viola Tricolor, whom he considers the the Commissioner after due advertisement for same as himself. Finally, we had a grand dance to the music to equal the Swiss. Old Leander and Mother Wort, who had got very much excited drinking the juice of the Madeira Vine, went down the middle all in a breeze, when they both fell upon Mistletoe, who cried out with pain. At this, the company seized upon some golden rods and drove them out at once, decree in this cause. together with a Thistle, who had been very pointed in her remarks.

A CAT AN HEIRESS.

One of the most exquisite of musicians, in her time, was Mademoiselle Dupuy, of the French opera. Her playing upon the harp was the wonder of Paris. She was convinced, however, that she owed her artistic excelstrange intimacy between a charming woman and her quadruped favorite, Monerif, her biographer, gives the following interesting particulars:

Of course the lovely musician's practising's at home, were assiduous and constant. But as soon as she sat down and began to prelude upon the instrument, she noticed that her cat assumed an attitude of intense attention. At the point of the instrument's arriving at any passage of peculiar beauty, the excited grimalkin went into a feline ecstacy; and so well measured was this sensibility, according to the excellence of the playing and pathos of the composition, that M'lle Dapuy was able to judge of the quality of the music by the manifest emotions of and posted at the front door of the Court House her cat! She became a devout Pusseyite, in of this County. A copy-Teste: fact, believing that the nervous creature was an exact prophet, foretelling precisely how music would affect the audience. And she was grateful accordingly to the friend to whom she thought she owed mainly her artistic success.

In her last illness, at the approach of death, M'lle Dupuy sent for the notary to make her will. She had accumulated a fortune by her profession; and the first clause of her testament was the giving of her townhouse and her country-house to her cat! She added to this annuity sufficient for the comfortable support of the four-legged mewsician during its natural life; and to make sure that this her last will and testament, should be respected, she gave several legacies to friends on the express condition that they should see to the fulfilment of her wishes. It was also a condition that they should severally take turns during the week in going to see and keep company with the orphan puse!

Monerif adds that the relatives of M'lle Dapay disputed the validity of the will, and a law suit was the consequence-Grimalkin vs. Dupuys. But the cat gained the case, and lived out her days with the genteel alternation between an elegant town-house and her charming country-house. The particulars of the final cat-astrophe are not given.
